JUDGE'S ELIGIBILITY AS A CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS IN DOUBT

State Canvassing Board to Decide Legal Point if Green Bay Man Wins Nomination

QUESTION ALREADY PASSED
ON IN TWO OTHER STATES

Congress Held Judge of Qualifications of Members

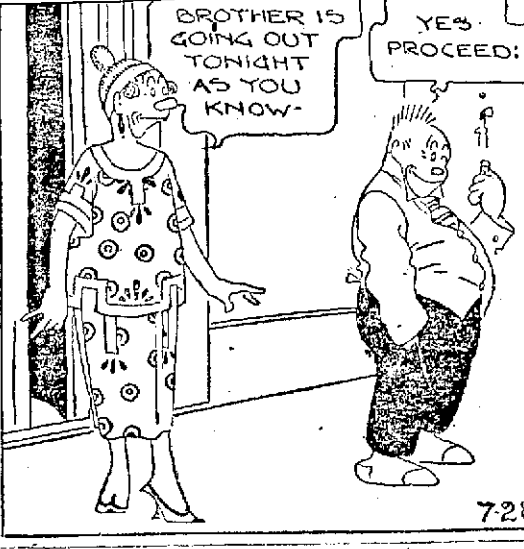

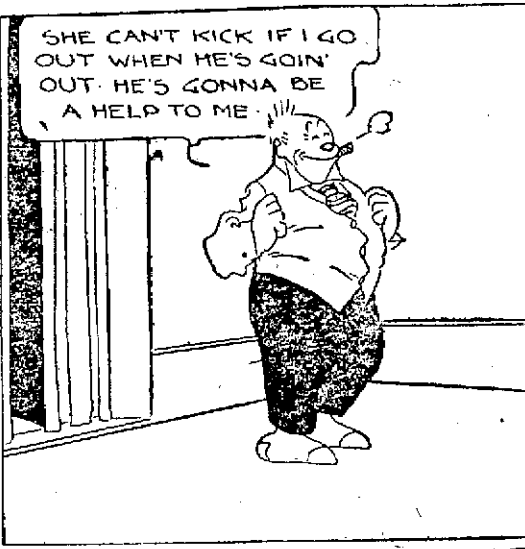

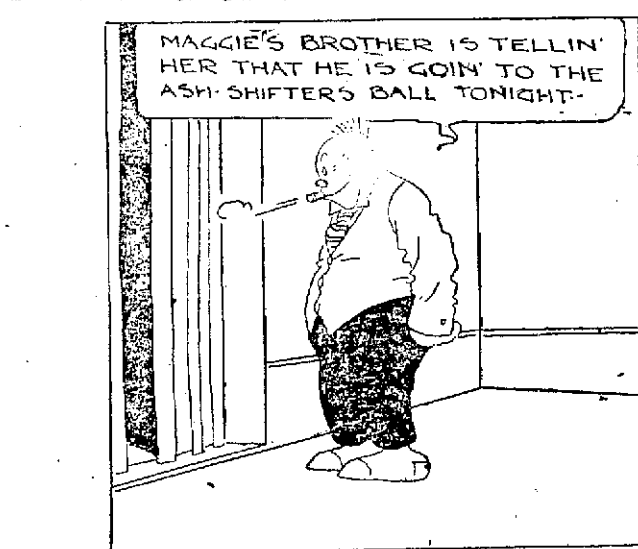

MADISON, Wis.—The state canvassing board may be faced with an interesting legal proposition this year. Judge Henry Grass of Green Bay has filed papers with the Secretary of State as a candidate for Congress in his district. There are several other candidates for Congress in the district, but if Judge Grass should be nominated, an interesting constitutional question will come before the canvassing board and may require judicial interpretation.

Article 7, Section 10, of the State Constitution of Wisconsin as amended in November, 1912 provides: "Each of the judges of Supreme and circuit courts shall receive a salary payable at such time as the Legislature shall fix; they shall hold no office of public trust, except a judicial office during the term for which they are respectively elected, and all offices, except office, given by the Legislature, or by the people shall be void."

Judge Henry Grass of Green Bay of the 14th Judicial Circuit was elected for a term ending January 1926. According to the Constitution, he cannot be a candidate for any office until this term has expired. The question before the canvassing board will be on the counting of the votes cast for Judge Grass and the Constitution declares that all votes given for such judicial candidates "shall be void."

This is one of the most interesting legal questions that has ever come up in Wisconsin involving an election. A number of years ago the proposition came up when Judge Webb of Grand Rapids was being considered for the U. S. Senatorial seat. This was before the days of direct election of senators. Lawyers at that time took the position that the legislature being a coordinate branch of government, with the supreme court, could not be enjoined. The question also came up before the supreme court, in the famous Tucker case of several years ago, when F. T. Tucker died suddenly during the primary campaign, who was a candidate for attorney general. In spite of his death, the voters of Wisconsin nominated him to the office of attorney general. L. H. Bancroft was second highest. The court took the position that time that votes cast for a dead man were void and that the canvassing board could not count them and gave the nomination to Mr. Bancroft.

There are two states which have passed on the statutory questions similar to the one involved in the Grass matter. In Oregon and Illinois the courts held that Congress was the judge of the qualifications of the election of its own members, and in doing so practically abrogated the law on the subject. The situation in Wisconsin is slightly different. Here the State Constitution is involved.

It will be for the canvassing board to determine what it shall do about Mr. Grass' votes. It is quite likely that the matter will go to the state supreme court for final determination, before the canvassing board will be able to give its decision. Friends of Judge Grass have taken the position that the Wisconsin constitution and the Wisconsin statute making void votes cast for a judge whose term has not yet expired is not a state question, but one for Congress to decide. They contend that should Mr. Grass receive the highest number of votes in his district, that it will be for Congress to decide.

Before Mr. Grass' name, however, can go on the election ballot, it must be certified by the state canvassing board composed of the Governor, Secretary of State, and Attorney General. The whole matter is shrouded in doubt. During the past year, there was a movement made that Judge Martin Loeck of Juneau County become candidate for U. S. Senate after he had resigned his judicial office. This same constitutional provision of Wisconsin was pointed to as a stumbling block. The legislature has grappled with this question many times and has extended the statute so as to include other than supreme court and circuit judges.

The state law now prohibits any judge of a court of record becoming a candidate for other than a judicial office during the term for which he was elected, and declares votes cast for him void. Thus the problem before the canvassing board will involve both the Constitution and state law.

That there will be litigation over the matter seems probable, but just what turn the litigation will take and when it will come is not known here. Secretary of State, Elmer S. Hall, has refused to make any statement with reference to the matter and the attorney general's office has not yet been asked for a legal opinion upon the question.

The national wealth of France is more evenly divided than in any other country of the world.

RAZOR-BACK HOGS REPORTED DYING OUT IN FLORIDA

Farmers in Southern State Now Paying More Attention to Pure Bred Stock

GAINESVILLE, Fla.—"Somebody ought to have a genuine Florida razor-back mounted before they become extinct. They're hard to find, now." Thus does no less an authority than the bureau of markets and crop estimates of the United States department of agriculture here officially confirm the suspicion that the porker around which so many yarns have been spun soon will be a candidate for the museum.

The Florida farmer is responsible for the passing of a pack of bones and bristles check full of mischief. The razor-back, or native hog, usually could work his body into any place his nose could enter. He was reared on a farm but was permitted to roam the woods until he became half wild and only a photograph could portray the damage he could do once he wormed his way into a plot of cultivated ground. As an article of food he was worth little.

Florida farmers for several years have been stocking their places with pure bred swine, and now have reached the stage where discussion of a pig's pedigree is regarded as of extreme importance. Co-operative sales of fine pigs, boys' and girls' clubs organized and operated under the supervision of county agricultural agents, and numerous sectional organizations of hog breeders sound the death knell of the razor-back.

There is every indication that the razor-back soon will be extinct. Floridians have said his backbone formed an edge sharp enough to cut a fence rail and many tourists believed the old yarn that the hundreds of thousands of pine trees on turpentine farms in the state, with the bark stripped off on two sides to a height of several feet, were damaged by the razor-backs sharpening themselves preparatory to cutting another fence. Snakes and alligators are rarely seen outside of zoos and now the razor-back is passing.

Dilemma
"We must try to make it pleasant for the cook."
"But what are we going to do? She complains if we have company, and at the same time threatens to quit because the place is so lonesome."—Washington Star.

Odd Fact
Life, strange to say, is never a desert drear to him who has plenty of sand.

Lure of the Dunes
Much of the mysterious lure of the dunes is in the magnificent sweep of the great luke along the wild shores. Its restless white expanse, the complement of the indolent sands. The distant bands of deep blue and green, dappled with dancing whitecaps, in the vistas through the openings, impart vivid color accents to the gray and neutral tones of the foregrounds.

"Father of English Poetry"
Geoffrey Chaucer is usually given this title. He was the first to use the seven-line stanza, and translated the complete in English verse.

Kellogg's Bran means so much to the health of every one who eats it!

Start eating Bran today! You can't afford the delay of a day—for BRAN—Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is nature's own remedy for constipation. Eliminate constipation or its symptoms from your system and you add years to your life. Free yourself of illness that can be directly traced to this distressing condition!

Authorities state that 90% of human illness has its beginning with constipation, which clogs the eliminative passages, backing up poisons and creating toxic conditions. At this stage the blood becomes affected and then follows the disorder of various organs. Bright's disease, diabetes, most cases of rheumatism, hardening of arteries, headaches, indigestion, etc., are directly caused by intestinal poisoning.

Pills and cathartics can give no adequate relief. They are not only temporary in their effect, but tend to aggravate already dangerous conditions. Kellogg's Bran causes neither discomfort nor irritation, and its action is absolutely positive. Bran sweeps and cleanses and purifies! Its work is wonderful!

Physicians endorse the use of Kellogg's Bran for constipation because it relieves constipation, naturally. Eat Bran regularly—at least two tablespoons daily; in chronic cases with each meal—as a cereal, sprinkled on other cereals, or in many other appetizing ways such as in raisin bread, gems, pancakes, macaroons, etc. Recipes on every box. All grocers sell Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled!

Start with Kellogg's Bran today. P. S.—Kellogg's Bran, eaten regularly, will clear up a pimply complexion and overcome an obnoxious breath.

Titles for Sale

THERE'S a great fuss on in England over the matter of titles. It seems that some inquisitive people have been wondering why so many rich men not particularly distinguished except
as successful money-makers have suddenly blossomed out as viscounts and baronets. Somebody availed himself of the valuable privilege
that blesses the house of commons, and asked
the government a pointed question about it.
And the best answer Lloyd George could make
was that "he had never departed from precedent" in distributing these honors. Which was,
of course, a lame excuse, because the notorious fact of title-selling has been commented upon
for at least one generation.

The London Spectator, indeed, declares
there is a regular tariff, which makes the price
of a knighthood 10,000 to 12,000 pounds, three times that for a baronetcy, and higher dignities
in proportion.

All of which is, after all, richly humorous from an American standpoint. If the party in power can shake down a socially ambitious and financially successful gentleman for such liberal contribution to its funds, with no bigger quid pro quo than a handle to put to his name,
we should say it was to be congratulated. Why all the pother? If the gentleman had paid a huge price for a government contract or a favorable tariff schedule that would be something to be excited about, because the inference
would be that he expected to make the arrangement pay him a profit out of the people's pockets. But when all he gets is the privilege of being called "m'lord," and having a coat of arms on his stationery, we should say there was nothing to get excited about. He has paid vastly more than the thing is worth, but that is, after all, his funeral—and campaign expenses must be paid somehow, as any politician
in any civilized country will agree.

Titles amounted to something once. When they stood for feudal leadership, which was
their beginning, they represented real responsibility, and definite duties in the military and civil organization of the country. But since nowadays they have nothing to do with the government, aside from the generally futile business of sitting in the house of lords which goes with certain of the higher ranges of titles, they might as well be granted in one way as in another. Peddling them may, indeed, be a good thing in the long run. It is evidently bringing titles into disrepute. If it keeps up, the logical result will be to make a title as empty in social estimation as it is in fact. And that will be a good thing for England. She shows the last vestiges nowadays of the outworn social system
in which hereditary aristocracy played a part.
It has been laughed out of being in every other country but Japan. So it is probably just as well that titles of nobility should become an article of commerce. They are so easy to manufacture with a stroke of the pen that one perceives the supply will eventually exceed the demand, and they will be a drug on the market.
Thus, one may hope, they will gradually arrive
at their true worth—zero—and disappear.

Red Propaganda

ONE recalls that shortly after the inception
of the shopmen's strike in Madison Mr.
Vanderhei, district manager, warned the public that red propaganda to which union labor is hostile was being circulated in the community.
Striking unionists were cautioned to discredit
it lest its appearance reflect upon the real
character and purposes of the railroad unions.

Last Saturday, a national warning of similar import was sounded by Daniel B. Robertson, president of the brotherhood of locomotive firemen and engineers. President Robertson's statement was issued at Cleveland
from headquarters.

The import of the statement was that revolutionists, having nothing in common with unionists, were seizing upon the unrest of the moment to spread their propaganda among the workers. They were seeking to incite revolution against the government of their fealty to which trades unionists are proud.
No doubt the warning is well founded.

The incident is typical of revolutionary programs. Insurrection cannot be promoted when men are busy and live even tempered lives.
Crises, industrial, and political, create the opportunity of the revolutionists. When large numbers of people are dissatisfied the agitator finds them in a receptive mood. Anger and disgust are the materials with which he works,
and he bides his time until the moment ripens.

That union leaders of national prominence
deem it prudent to warn workers everywhere
against the insidious propaganda of red revolutionists is a good sign. That they sense the danger is a fact which contributes to national safety as well as to the sanity of industrial movements. Citizens who find seditious pamphlets bandied about should not charge them to trades unionism. Trades unionists should be the first to disown and destroy them. We have our group problems. History shows that all peoples have had them. But excepting for what the late Colonel Roosevelt liked to call the "lunatic fringe," we are loyal citizens of the world's greatest democracy.

Two and Two and Four?

HERE is an interesting situation. Senator
La Follette in his keynote speech declared himself for public ownership of railroads and the merchant marine. Any of his impartial observers will not question that the city of Madison is for Senator La Follette. It has always given him a heavy majority, and doubtless will repeat the performance.

Some three years ago a proposal was made that the city of Madison attempt to own and operate its street car system. Local transportation was in bad shape and the private corporation owning the lines was unable to improve and extend to meet the growing needs of the community. It seemed a case in which an experiment in public ownership was to be tried, and the newspapers vigorously supported the undertaking. When the votes were counted public ownership of the Madison street railway system was found to have been defeated
upwards of 3 to 1.

This is something of a puzzle. Were the people of Madison in favor of national ownership and opposed to municipal ownership of public utilities? If not, how shall we square their overwhelming rejection of municipal ownership with their support of Senator La Follette who vigorously espouses national public ownership of the same sort of public utility?

No doubt we are fitted for self-government,
but in community matters we entertain ourselves by most interesting inconsistencies.

Another society crook has been caught. Some people are not known by the company they keep.

TEN YEARS

Robert Farnam and Russell Pope, two local boys, returned last night by canoe from Lake Chetek, where they were camping. They came down the Chippewa River, Cedar, Menominee and Chetek rivers and entered the Mississippi river. They made the trip of 200 miles in five days.

The men and officers of Company M of La Crosse
covered themselves with glory and mud yesterday morning when, starting from their camp south of Wyviele,
after a driving rain storm, they captured three hundred
of the Sixth Des Moines cavalry in a running mock battle which was carried way up to the Indian reservation near Tomah. Company M worked in conjunction with Company K of Tomah which also did valiant service
in the move against the Des Moines cavalry.

A new $25,000 oil firm, headed by W. L. Zust of Dahquie, will be established in La Crosse if present plans materialize. Negotiations are being made for the purchase of the ground formerly occupied by the Holway Lumber company and oil tanks will be erected as soon as the plans are finished. The oil firm is an independent enterprise and proposes to engage in the retail sale of oil.

TWENTY YEARS
AGO TODAY

At eight o'clock last evening Rev. E. O. Vik united in marriage Miss Alva Olson and Mr. Martin Larson.
The ceremony was performed at the parsonage of the Charles Street Lutheran church. Mr. and Mrs. Larson
will reside in this city.

Jacob Liska, one of the oldest residents of the city, died of paralysis at his home, 1915 Mississippi street, yesterday afternoon. Mr. Liska was one of the best known tailors in the city. He was 53 years old.

A large crowd gathered yesterday as the masons
tore away the bricks from the cornerstone of the Brick Pomeroy building at Fourth and Main streets. The cornerstone contained copies of "The La Crosse Democrat," confederate money bearing Pomeroy's signature,
lists of city officers and their policies during 1867,
names of some of the oldest residents and a picture of Brick Pomeroy.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Hanchett left last night for
New York where they will take a steamer for Norway.

THIRTY YEARS
AGO TODAY

The town board of Holland met yesterday and decided to close the Gale's ferry road. This road has been travelled for thirty years and the closing of it causes a good many comments, there being no other crossing between North Bend and McGilvray's. The closing of the road puts Mr. Vincent's ferry out of business. A new road will be built to the river and a bridge will be built across it.

The family of R. F. Cool, salesman for the W. A.
Roosevelt company, has arrived in the city from Afton,
Iowa, and will reside at 325 North Eleventh street.

Dr. H. P. Johnson, formerly of Houston, Minnnesota, has located permanently in La Crosse with his office upstairs on the corner of Fifth and Main streets.
His family will come here to live in a short time.

Walter McDonald left last night for Chicago to take a position as electrician with the Calumet Electric road.

Ferdinand Yeska and his family have moved here
from Hokah.

A Summer's
Experiment

By H. IRVING KING

Mary Kelton had just been graduated from Wellesley and Ralph Chambers had just been graduated from Harvard. All newly fledged college graduates are very old and very wise.
If you don't believe it just ask one of them. Ralph was all that a harvard graduate should be; tall, athletic good looking and on speaking terms with all the "ologies." Mary was all that a graduate of Wellesley
should be—tall, athletic, good looking
and on speaking terms with "ologies"
of every sort—and very earnest. Together they made a couple that people turned to look after in the street.
They were both orphans, likewise
cousins, and were possessed of a rich great-uncle who had so ordered their lives in advance that all they had to do in this world was to marry
each other and inherit his fortune.

"It is all too utterly absurd," said
Mary as she sat on the piazza of her summer hotel with Ralph. "Why, when we were little children it was, 'Mary,
kiss your great-uncle and he will give you a new dress.' And now, 'Mary, kiss your little wife.' And it has been the same thing ever since—with the kissing omitted."

"Not always," interrupted Ralph.
"Don't be frivolous," continued Mary.
"You are at a crisis of our lives and must take decisions and reason about them. Ah, Ralph, human hearts are not to be shaped, molded and controlled by little old men. The soaring aspirations for the soul are not to be contained by sordid considerations of mere money, or the boundless destinies to which we are born are to be sacrificed
to a preordained course in life."

"Quite so," replied Ralph, who was not much of an orator but nevertheless a very good one. "I agree with you perfectly. I don't want Uncle Alexander's money. I can make money myself. I have now no end of money
who will see that I get started right.
You see, Mary, I want to carve out
my own career. But you see I agree
with this phrase that he repeated it.
'Yes—that is it; carve out my own
career.'"

"It is noble," murmured Mary. "And what was that you said about the heart?"

"Don't you remember the words,
but they were all right—just the way
I feel about it. Of course you know I like you immensely. Mary—always
my own career. But you see I agree
with this phrase that he repeated it.
'Yes—that is it; carve out my own
career.'"

"I have another life I long to meet.
Without which life my life is incomplete."

"Same here," said Ralph. "And then,
after a minute of silence. 'You don't know what you are saying. We have al-

"No, no, Ralph," interposed Mary.
"Be true to yourself, be true to your ideals. I don't want Uncle Alexander's

Abe Martin

Th' more you love your wife th'
more it costs you. We'd never know some folks had a reputation if they didn't resent a reflection on it.

Now almost snubbed the widow, sought
the society of other men, and indulged
in long meditative walks in the woods.
The widow did not seem to mind it.
Mary began to fear that the professor had a sad, worldly and mercenary strain in him. She was sure of it when she saw him so often new
by the side of Ralph's neglected widow
when they were before they should talk about in common for her part she could not imagine. It was evident that both she and Ralph had yet a long way before them before they should find their "complementary souls." And now the season drew to its close. Already the guests were beginning to leave the hotel, and the leaves upon the maples were turning to red and gold and bronze. The time had come when the friends of Uncle Alexander were to leave the hotel and pay a visit to that estimable relative at his home.

Upon the occasion of that visit the young people had arranged they were to announce to the venerable Alexander
the fact of their emancipation and the discovery of all his plans for the future. On the evening before they were to leave Ralph and Mary met by appointment to formulate their proposal. They were in the great hall
in that secluded nook of the hotel
piazza where had taken place the great star of the conference. "It's a beautiful night," said Ralph.

"Beautiful," replied Mary. "How
sweet the moonlight sleeps upon you
now."

"Don't it?" said Ralph. "Mary, Mary,
have you found that—that did you call
it?—other life—yet?"

"No, Ralph, not yet. One must sometimes seek through all the world for that—and you—have you found—how
you phrase it—that other girl—yet?"

"Oh, Mary," said Ralph, "there's only one girl in all this world for me—and
you know it."

Mary gasped and then, after a moment's silence, laid her hand gently upon Ralph's arm and said in a low
voice, "Well, Ralph, perhaps Uncle Alexander knows best after all."

With a cry of delight Ralph—but he pressed the moon itself had behind a cloud just then.

"Beautiful," replied Mary. "How
sweet the moonlight sleeps upon you
now."

"Don't it?" said Ralph. "Mary, Mary,
have you found that—that did you call
it?—other life—yet?"

THE OPERATORS' STRIKE

(From The Ottumwa Courier)

Dispatches to The Courier, published Saturday, stated that industries in Iowa are compelled to pay $10 and
as high as $15 for coal at the mine,
the price having gone to panic levels
within a brief period as a result of the combination of unfortunate circumstances forced upon the country
by the mine and railroad strikes.

A few weeks ago it became necessary for Ottumwa coal dealers to pay $4.75 a ton at the mine for coal
which had been selling at figures much lower. Gradually during the present summer, the market price of coal has been raised by the owners of mines remaining in operation and by the owners of coal stocks which were on hand when the miners walked out on April 1. Secretary Hoover has tried to hold coal prices down to a reasonable figure, but he has received anything but cooperation from coal operators.

The attitude of coal operators toward President Harding's plan for opening mines is as significant as
the sudden rise in the price of coal to indefensible heights. With a few exceptions there has been a marked refusal among coal operators to refuse cooperation with the president's suggestion, and some of them
have expressed decided opposition to Mr. Harding's policy. Others have contented themselves with announcements that they will make no effort to open the mines. A few operators have exhibited the same spirit which impelled Mr. Harding to endeavor to obtain a supply of coal for the public
and prevent a fuel famine.

Save for the few exceptions that have been noted, the country is face
to face with what amounts to a strike
of coal operators, no less than with a strike of union miners. And it is but natural that the lay observer, who must have coal if he is not to submit his family and himself to suffering next winter, will see a direct connection between the operators' strike
and the prices demanded for coal at this time.

If the miners' strike should be ended today and the railroad strike
should end with it there would be difficulty in supplying the whole country with coal during the coming winter. There would be a heavy demand for fuel from every section of the nation and it would be possible to sell
the entire output of mines at a high price, at least until next spring.

Every day the mines remain closed adds to the seriousness of the situation confronting the country now
and the situation which must be encountered throughout the winter. Every day of idleness for the coal mines
means added profit to the mine owners when in the end, their mines are reopened.

And in the meantime, under the arrangement which exists between
their associations and the miners' union,
members of the union are on duty at mines, operating pumps and doing other work which is necessary
to keep the properties in readiness for a resumption of work "after the strike is settled." Miners' spokesmen and the official journal of the outcast union carry on a spirited verbal warfare against the coal operators; spokesmen for the operators publish a great deal of propaganda
for their side, much of it consisting of criticism of the miners. But it is the mines, despite the fact that relations between the operators and the miners' union have been "broken off
absolutely" ever since April 1, a little force of union miners is keeping the home fires burning under the mine boilers, and the mines are in ship-shape order against a resumption of work at such time as the leaders of the miners and the leaders of the operators elect to get together and sign a new agreement.

A few days ago, Associated Press
dispatches from Des Moines quoted
"both operators and union officials"
as saying that the "friendly relations" which have existed between miners and their employers in Iowa
for several years have not been disrupted by the present strike, and that mining could be resumed in Iowa but for the fact that the interstate agreement for four states to the east, long accepted as the basis for the Iowa
wage scale, ceased to exist last April.

His Modesty
"You didn't," he charged.
"I did not," she denied.
"You didn't," he repeated.
"I did not!" she flung back.
"Well," said a hubby, "one of us
two is a very capable liar. But there is one thing which prevents me from
saying which one."

"Modesty, I presume," retorted
wife. And he gave up, beaten.—
Boston Transcript.

Therefore, Iowa miners and Iowa operators confess themselves entirely unable to negotiate a working agreement for their state, and meanwhile, Iowans pay $10 to $15 for coal.

The friendly relations which have existed between miners and operators have survived several general strikes and uncounted local strikes. They have survived millions of words of heated charge and counter charge
from rival camps, words with which miners have reviled operators and operators have accused miners.

Is the public to understand that all
this stuff has been in the nature of a sham battle?

Operators have complained loudly
that they are under the domination
of the miners' union. They have contented that the check-off system
by which they collect union dues
from their employees and turn over
the money to the union treasurers,
forces them to hold together the organization which dominates their business affairs. They have explained the upward movement in coal
prices by declaring they were forced
by the miners' union to pay higher and higher wages. But they never have made a serious effort to ex-
terminate themselves from the difficulties
into which, from the first, they travelled with open eyes. They never have attempted to fight out a strike
in the sense that the railroads are fighting the shopmen's strike today.

Their method has been to permit their mines to lie idle during strikes, cared for by union miners, until the prospect for high coal prices gave them
an opportunity to meet the demands of strikers and pass the cost of a settlement on to the consumer.

There are numerous signs at hand
that the public, long suffering, is tired of paying for this practice. Resolutions for a thorough and searching investigation of the coal industry are before congress, and it is probable that one of them will be adopted and that an investigation "as is an investigation" will be the sequel. Whatever else may be the results of President Harding's efforts to bring about a resumption of coal mining, it has served to impress on millions of minds the definite fact that the public—that great body politic which is greater than coal miners or coal operators or both combined—has a right to a square deal at the hands
of those who assume the responsibility for supplying the basic necessities of life.

This is not written as an indictment of every individual coal operator or every individual coal miner.
It is written as an indictment of a system which, in its operation, seems to have mislaid all semblance of conscience and all consideration of other than selfish interests.

Beset by serious problems, the public is beginning to do some serious thinking. Into its composite mind is coming the consciousness that the public and its interests supersede
those of any minority or any combination of minorities. Our society is a complex thing; it is made up of groups but those groups are interdependent. It is obvious that it is dangerous and unwise to permit any individual or any set of individuals to hold too much power. But it is equally dangerous and equally unwise
for any group to over-estimate its power and abuse it on occasion.

His Modesty
"You didn't," he charged.
"I did not," she denied.
"You didn't," he repeated.
"I did not!" she flung back.
"Well," said a hubby, "one of us
two is a very capable liar. But there
is one thing which prevents me from
saying which one."

GANFIELD CALLS UPON SENATOR LA FOLLETTE TO SHOW HIS COLORS

Should Declare Himself Either
a Socialist or a Republican,
Declares Candidate

MANITOWOC, Wis.—When a man wants to be a member of the socialist party, he ought to say so, and when he wants to be a republican he ought to say so, especially if he is seeking office. It is controllable of an embarrassment to be confronted by a candidate who wants to be both a socialist and a republican but won't say whether he is either one," said William A. Ganfield, opponent of United States Senator Robert M. La Follette in the coming primaries.

"I cannot find myself indulging in a form of campaign which will divide our American citizens into racial groups," Ganfield said. "Recently speakers have addressed you who have sought to do that very thing."

"I want to remind you, however, that more than a quarter of a century ago, when Bryan advocated the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, it was the German American citizens who stood together virtually as a body and voted against that economic heresy. Modern radicalism is more dangerous than the doctrines advocated by Bryan in 1896, and more likely to play havoc with our present economic system."

"I am confident you will find the Americans of German descent standing today just where they did in 1896."

Proceeding his Manitowoc meeting, Ganfield during the day visited Cleveland, Two Rivers, Michigot, Maribel and Francis Creek.

In his speech at Michigot, Ganfield said, "I have three principles in my creed for capital and labor. They are that the working man shall have a generous wage, that capital shall have a fair return and that the public shall not be asked to pay more than a reasonable price for commodities. Any concern that is unable to meet those conditions should go out of business. If a business is able to meet those conditions but does not do so, the government should compel it to."

ARCADIA YOUTH DROWNS AT WINONA; STEPS INTO A HOLE

WINONA, Minn.—Emil Meier, 21 years old, an office employee of the J. L. Watkins Co., in this city and son of Mr. and Mrs. John Meier of Arcadia, Wis., was drowned Wednesday evening when he stepped into a deep hole while wading in the main channel of the Mississippi river just below the Chicago and North Western railway bridge off the south shore of Lutsch island. The body has not been recovered. Almost a score of spectators witnessed the drowning from the high wagon bridge several hundred feet away, but were powerless to save him. Meier could not swim. It was said by his cousin, Clarence Schneider.

NORMAL SCHOOL REGENTS PASS RESOLUTION OUSTING COLLEGE COURSES; TO GRANT DEGREES

MADISON, Wis.—The state board of normal school regents had a meeting on Thursday afternoon definitely pledging the normal schools of the state to devote themselves primarily and exclusively for the preparation of teachers for the public schools of the state. It further declared in a resolution adopted that no subjects not a part of the course for the preparation of teachers shall be discontinued. This new departure is to become effective July 1, 1923, so that schools which have been organized to give special courses during the coming year will be permitted to do so. This policy will result in greatly changing several of the normal schools of the state, including the Milwaukee normal.

Following is a resolution which was adopted which outlines the proposition of the board:

Teaching Courses Only

Be it resolved, that on and after July 1, 1923, all courses offered in Wisconsin state normal schools shall be organized primarily and exclusively for the preparation of teachers for the public schools of the state; that the entire resources and energy of the normal schools shall be devoted to this end and that all subjects not primarily, definitely and exclusively a part of a course for the preparation of teachers shall be discontinued.

Be it further resolved, that beginning July 1, 1923, the several state normal schools are hereby authorized to offer four year courses for the preparation of teachers of general academic subjects in high schools, such courses to be based upon the principle of major and minor subjects and to be subject to the specific approval of the board of regents in each case, admission requirements to which shall be graduation from a four-year course in an approved secondary school.

Four-Year Courses

Be it further resolved, that beginning July 1, 1923, the several state normal schools which have special departments for the preparation of teachers of physical education, music, drawing, industrial education, agriculture, home economics and commerce, and hereby authorized to offer four-year courses for such departments, admission requirements to which shall be graduation from a four-year course in an approved secondary school.

College Courses Out

Be it further resolved, that on and after July 1, 1923, the college courses, so called, in Wisconsin state normal schools now existing, shall be discontinued in all of the normal schools of the state. In order to facilitate the carrying out of the foregoing program and make effective its purpose, the following legislation is recommended and the legislative committee of the board is hereby authorized and directed to take whatever steps may be necessary to secure its enactment at the regular session of the legislature in 1923:

First, that on and after September 1, 1924, a minimum preparation of not less than three years beyond secondary school for teachers of both general academic and special subjects in the high schools of the state be required; and on and after September 1, 1926, a minimum preparation of four years beyond secondary school for such teachers.

Degree Authorized

Second, that the board of regents be authorized to grant a bachelor's degree in education to students who have completed in a Wisconsin state normal school a four-year course in preparation for teaching, the entrance requirement to which is graduation from a four-year course in an approved secondary school.

An amendment was accepted including the teachers of junior high schools and the principals of state graded schools within the scope of the resolution.

ADDED FERTILIZER NEEDED IN CHERRY GROWING DISTRICT

MADISON, Wis.—Added fertilizer is needed in the Sturgeon Bay cherry district if the maximum production is to be secured, a bulletin issued today by the college of agriculture says. Readily available forms of nitrogen as nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia have given marked results in many orchards, the bulletin declares.

FOUR WIVES GRANTED DIVORCES; DESERTION IS CHARGED BY ALL

Ethel Clark, Adelia Williams, Mrs. Genevieve Simon, and Elnor Jordan Get Freedoms

Four wives, who charged that they had been deserted, obtained divorces from Judge Higbee in circuit court Friday morning. Several other divorce cases will be heard on Saturday, the second day of the two-day motion day session the court is holding.

Besides granting Mrs. Ethel Clark a divorce from her husband, Theodore Clark, Judge Higbee instructed District Attorney Reid to issue a warrant for the arrest of Clark on charges of abandoning his family. The Clarks were married at Filmon, Wis., March 24, 1916, and have two children, four and one years old. Mrs. Clark alleges her husband was cruel, used abusive language, used violence toward her, displayed a penchant for the company of other women and finally deserted her and their children on March 14, 1922. Clark now is employed as a farmhand in the town of Barre. Mrs. Clark was awarded $30 a month alimony, $50 attorney's fees and clerk's fees. Clark did not make any appearance in court.

Mrs. Adelia Williams was granted a divorce from Benjamin Williams, $25 a month alimony, $50 attorney's fees and also clerk's fees. Mrs. Williams charges that her husband refuses to work and that she has to work to support herself. Mrs. Williams started a divorce action in September, 1921, but the action was dismissed on Williams' promise to mend his ways. They were married in Winona, April 28, 1921.

A commitment was entered in the Williams case by Judge C. W. Hunt, charging Williams with contempt of court in failing to obey the court's order that he support his wife. Williams will be arrested and confined in jail until he complies with Judge Hunt's order.

Mrs. Genevieve Simon, who was deserted by her husband, Lawrence Simon, in August, 1899, was granted a decree. She did not ask for any alimony. They were married in April, 1896, and have one son, who is now of age.

Desertion also was alleged by Mrs. Elnor Jordan, suing William Jordan. She got a divorce. They were married in Winona, Feb. 11, 1918, and Williams left for parts unknown. It is asserted on May 22, 1918, after a little more than three months of married life.

Coxie E. Hale were lawyers for Mrs. Jordan. Mahoney & Schubert represented Mrs. Simon and Hartwell & Brodie were the attorneys for Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Williams.

Lucien T. Reid filed divorce papers in circuit court Friday morning for Mrs. Gustie Crowley against Silas Crowley. According to Mrs. Crowley her husband was of ugly disposition, used abusive language, swore at her, objected to her going out in the evenings even to visit her relatives although he rarely stayed home at night. On July 13 last Crowley left his family in destitute circumstances, the complaint alleges. They have three children, three and two years and four months old.

PEACE PLAN DETAILS ARE KEPT SECRET

(Continued from page one) The seniority question and take all strikers back to work. Another was said to be to give "kiddie" men who remained at work prior to settlement rights over strikers and the third was for separate adjustment of the seniority dispute by each road with its own employees through joint committees to be appointed.

Wage Rehearing Planned The president was said to believe these proposals promised considerable hope of a strike settlement and to have declared that "more clouds had passed away" in the railway situation within the past few hours than for several weeks.

Rehearing by the railroad labor board of the shopmen's wage question was said to be embraced in all three of the proposals. One proposal, it was said, also contemplates that both employers and employees agree that hereafter the board's rulings be observed without question.

The president had suggested it was asserted, that as an initial step under one proposal the labor board be given complete jurisdiction over the seniority controversy. If this could not be agreed upon, it was said, the president proposed as a substitute, the plan for settlement by the executives and employees of each separate road, through joint committees composed of three members representing each party to the controversy. In event such committees disagreed it was proposed the question be taken to some form of arbitration tribunal.

Administration officials acquainted with the proposals appeared to share the president's view that a basis upon which the strikers might return to work had been worked out.

Executives Meet Tuesday The situation was expected to remain more or less at a status quo pending the meeting of railroad executives to be called in New York next Tuesday. Announcements that executives of 148 major railroads of the country would be brought together on that date to consider a plan for settling the strike was made by J. M. Jewett, chairman of the association of railway executives after a conference with President Harding Thursday night, his second visit to the White House during the day, the rest of which the president devoted almost exclusively to conferences with officials of the shopmen's union headed by B. M. Jewell.

The attitude of the executives, it was understood, was unchanged concerning the seniority rule, chief obstacle to peace, notwithstanding presence brought to bear by the President to induce them to abandon this stand. Peace Rests on Seniority. The basis of an armistice, therefore seemed Friday night about narrowed down to this, should all of the executives' plans for a settlement be rejected, that the striking shopmen return to work with the assurance that the railroad labor board will grant them a rehearing of their grievances and assign jurisdiction over the much disputed seniority question. It was pointed out that this plan might be carried out without the acquiescence of the railway executives. The men would return to work and, if their old places, under the seniority rule, were denied them, they could carry the dispute to the labor board, which would then proceed to deal with the seniority question.

Peace Looms on Horizon CHICAGO, Ill.—By The Associated Press.—Plans for peace in the railway strike again Friday seemed to be assuming a more tangible form and the hope was expressed that the 300,000 union shopmen soon would resume work and submit their grievances, including the question of seniority rights, to the United States railroad labor board.

While the conference at Baltimore of R. & O. officials with their striking workmen was reported to have progressed smoothly toward an agreement, R. M. Jewell, head of the shopmen's workers, was withholding approval of a separate peace until all plans for a national settlement had been thoroughly discussed.

In view of statements made by some railroads that striking men returning to work must return as new employees, it was pointed out that the railway executives failed to arrive at an agreement on the seniority question, the men going back to work could, if denied their old places, take the dispute to the labor board without sanction of the executives.

Trackmen File Disputes Twenty-six disputes involving wages and working conditions on various railroads were filed with the rail board by E. F. Grable, chief of the maintenance of way men's union, in accord with the peace program adopted by him.

A statement issued by the western railroads' presidents' committee on public relations declared that rights of new men must be respected.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul has established employment offices at a number of points along its various lines and opened an employment headquarters in Milwaukee.

Shops of the Chesapeake & Ohio at Covington, Ky., were opened with a full force, the railroad announced.

There was a noticeable increase in the number of reports of violence reaching here from points as far west as San Bernardino, Calif., and as far east as Concord, N. H.

DEWEY ASKS PEOPLE TO GIVE AID TO THE "KIDDIE KAMP" FUND

An appeal is being made to the public for financial help by D. C. Dewey to aid in operating the "Kiddie Kamp" at New Amsterdam. The camp will be opened in August and is primarily for mothers and little children.

"We're been reading and hearing a great deal about the vacations and good times that the boys of our city are having," said Mr. Dewey, "and every one has done his best part to make their outings beneficial. But there is one whom it seems that we have forgotten, the one who drudges day to day with not many days of sunshine—that is the mother."

"The 'Kiddie Kamp' located at New Amsterdam has been doing this kind of work for several years. On account of the other camps and the contributions, Mr. Dewey has deemed it advisable to wait until the last month of August to get mothers away from their duties for a few days and enjoy the beauties of nature and the good things that are provided for their comfort and rest."

"There is no charge made for these outings and an appeal must be made to the public to help give these tired mothers and their little kiddies a few days where they can 'forget' their troubles. Let's all 'kick in' and give 'mother' a good time."

"Send checks to 'Kiddie Kamp,' P. O. Box 7341."

LONG CAMPAIGN FOR UNION STATION HERE FINALLY SUCCESSFUL

Decision Delayed Replies to the arguments were delayed by lack of consent for two reasons—first because the railroads have been struggling with adverse conditions and were not in condition to enter upon any building operations; second, all prices were at the peak in the fall and winter of 1917 and building costs almost prohibitive during the year of 1921.

With the approach of conditions more nearly to normal, both in the railroad business and in the building trades, the petition was taken up again. The final hearing was held here by the commission on May 4, 1922, since which time the commission has had the matter under consideration.

IDENTIFY WOMAN'S BODY MADISON, Wis.—The woman drowned in Lake Mendota here Wednesday was identified Friday as Mrs. Grace Pease, wife of R. B. Pease, professor of English at the municipal university of Akron, Ohio.

Mr. Pease came to Madison today from Akron, Ohio, expecting to find his wife visiting with the family of A. J. Myrland, secretary of the Wisconsin tax commission. She had not appeared at their home, and learning of the accidental drowning in Lake Mendota visited the undertaking parlors in which the body of the woman was being held. He identified her as his wife.

RAIDERS OF FARM HOUSE ARE SOUGHT AT CLAYTON TODAY

Sheriff Heralds and Deputies are of Opinion that Men Will be Found

Sheriff Heralds of Prairie du Chien Friday expressed the belief that raiders of the Horgan farm house near Gays Mills last Tuesday, in which a large gold hoard was taken and the aged sister of Steve and John Horgan nearly beaten to death, will be located shortly, according to his statement over long distance Friday morning.

The sheriff and aides were preparing Friday morning to journey to Clayton, southeast of Soldiers Grove in which territory the authorities had reason to believe the bandits reside. Sheriff Heralds stated he had names of three men who were under suspicion as responsible for the crime, but withheld the names and further information concerning them.

RAILROADS ORDERED TO SUBMIT PLANS FOR DEPOT WITHIN 90 DAY PERIOD

Plans must diverge from the main line to that point and return, or sub-train service be furnished between the two depots in question for all passenger service in and out of La Crosse, via the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway.

"The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad company maintains a passenger depot at the corner of Pearl and Second streets in the city of La Crosse. It also has a small passenger depot in North La Crosse just above Grand Crossing. The Chicago & North Western Railway company has only one depot within the limits of the city of La Crosse, which is located at the corner of Third and Vine streets. The Green Bay & Western Railroad company has a small depot in the extreme southern portion of the city, about as far removed from the business center of the city of La Crosse as are the North La Crosse depots of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroads. The La Crosse & Southeastern Railway company uses the passenger depot of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad company and maintains no passenger depot of its own."

Review Arguments

"The petitioner introduced plans of these various existing depots for the purpose of showing what it contended to be the inadequacy of the station facilities for a city such as La Crosse. It also introduced testimony tending to show the surrounding territory within a radius of fifty or sixty miles, said to be tributary to La Crosse as business center, together with various statements of the amount of business transacted with the respondent railroads by the city, all for the purpose of supporting its contention as to the inadequacy of the existing station facilities."

Show Five Plans

"The petitioner then offered plans showing various possible locations for the union depot asked for. These plans were five in number, known as (1) Nolen plan, located west of the causeway and just north of the La Crosse river on the low bottom land along the La Crosse river between the main portion of the city and what is designated North La Crosse; (2) the Woods plan, located east of the causeway; (3) the Bradish plan, No. 1, located on the row of blocks east of and adjacent to Second street and north of Main street; (4) the Bradish plan No. 2, a similar location, but north of State street only; and (5) the Dockendorf plan, located in the northern part of the existing Chicago & North Western station tracks at a point north of Badger street and facing the court house and the business portion of the city."

The Nolen plan was prepared several years ago by Mr. Nolen, city planning expert in conjunction with his work of city planning carried in the city of La Crosse. The Woods plan originated with W. S. Woods, consulting engineer, La Crosse, and was the original plan prepared for a possible union passenger station. The two Bradish plans were prepared by George Bradish, then city engineer of the city of La Crosse. The Dockendorf plan was prepared by Bernard Dockendorf, architect of the city of La Crosse, and submitted to the petitioner by him for its consideration and in turn presented by it for the consideration of this commission.

The petitioner by its consulting engineer, Mr. Woods, introduced the proposed plans with their possibilities in the way of adequacy for station facilities, station tracks, accessibility to street car and street traffic, the relation of the various sites to the business district and other matters pertinent thereto. The two Bradish plans and the Dockendorf plan do not contemplate changing the existing condition wherein the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad and the Chicago & North Western railroad trains enter the city stub tracks, and as a consequence must either back in or back out of the city.

Causeway Sites

"The two so-called causeway sites, being the Nolen plan and the Woods plan, contemplate what is practically a complete abandonment of the existing passenger track facilities and the reconstruction of the same in such a way as to permit the passenger trains of these two roads to loop through the station, thus avoiding a back-up movement. These plans also contemplate that the passenger line of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad through the river front portion of the city shall be abandoned and a loop track built from the so-called back line or freight line of that road to loop or run through the proposed union station. It is contended by the petitioner that although the two causeway sites are in the La Crosse river bottom and will require a very considerable amount of filling to bring the ground level above high water mark, nevertheless, the improved swampy condition of the land should make it relatively cheap to acquire and the location closely adjacent to the Mississippi and Black rivers should make it comparatively inexpensive to fill by dredging and pumping sand from the river bottoms. This filling would have to be of an average height of 12 feet. In connection with these two sites it is the thought of the petitioner that a viaduct should be constructed to carry the causeway over the railroad tracks, which would be constructed at about the present grade of that causeway. Most of the testimony of the petitioner regarding these various sites related to either the Nolen or the Woods plan.

Roads' Position "The respondent railroads all contended that a union depot in La Crosse is neither necessary for public convenience nor warranted by reason of what they believe to be the extraordinary expense which would be imposed upon them. They further contended that the physical situation in the way of topographical conditions, improvements existing and the present arrangement of railroad tracks are such as to make the construction of a union depot on any of the sites proposed impracticable. At the same time the respondent roads introduced considerable testimony and many exhibits tending to show, in general, that the proposed plan would cost for such an improvement might be. The combined estimates of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway company, the Chicago & North Western Railway company and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad company for the Nolen plan, including the causeway viaduct, the double-tracking and grade reduction of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy freight line, and the separation of the grades of four highway crossings on that line, reached in the aggregate the sum of over $3,500,000. A similar estimate for the Woods plan amounted to a few thousand dollars in excess of that for the Nolen plan. The respondent roads did not submit estimates for all of the work incident to the Bradish plan No. 2 (the Bradish plan No. 1 was practically eliminated from consideration by the petitioner) but the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway company did submit a statement as to what the probable expense to it might be if the Bradish plan were adopted, which figure was $151,000. No estimate was submitted as to what the cost might be to the other respondent railroads for a union station in accordance with that plan. No estimate of any nature was submitted with reference to the so-called Dockendorf plan.

Reply to Roads

"At the close of the second hearing, the petitioner asked for sufficient time to study the various exhibits and estimates presented by the respondent railroads for rebuttal purposes and at the last hearing the petitioner did offer considerable rebuttal testimony with reference to these estimates. That testimony was to the effect that the various estimates of the railroad companies were in many respects excessive and unwarranted and that many items of work were included in such estimates which were held unnecessary or entirely foreign to the construction and operation of a union passenger station, such as the double-tracking and grade revision of the freight line of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad and the construction of four overhead viaducts for the separation of existing highway grade crossings and the construction or remodeling of various interlocking plants. The petitioner further insisted that it could not express an intelligent opinion with reference to the estimated figures stated by the respondent railroads for station and terminal facilities (which figure is more than $1,170,000) because such respondent roads did not submit any plan or plans upon which such estimate was based. The petitioner's engineer, Mr. Woods, then gave an estimate for the aggregate total cost to the respondent roads for the Nolen site, of a little more than $800,000 and for the Woods site of a little less than $800,000."

"In arriving at these figures Mr. Woods eliminated some of the items appearing in the estimates of the railroad companies entirely. The figures for other items in many cases were revised to lower figures and for some other items he gave figures prepared without reference to the estimates of the various railroad companies."

Position of City Government

"The city of La Crosse did by resolution of its common council, dated May 21, 1920, declare its approval of the plan to apply to the railroad commission for an order directing the erection of a union passenger station to be used by all railroads entering La Crosse. Under date of November 13, 1920, the common council by resolution petitioned the railroad commission to dismiss the union depot proceeding and to permit the respective railroads to rebuild, repair or remodel their existing stations."

City Asks Dismissal

Under date of January 28, 1922, pursuant to a resolution of the common council a petition was filed with the railroad commission requesting the dismissal of the proceeding. On June 24, 1922, the common council passed a resolution requesting that further proceeding in the union depot case be withheld for a period of sixty days to permit the railroads in interest to submit to the common council for its consideration specific plans for the improvement of their respective station facilities. Irrespective of these actions of the common council, the Chamber of Commerce has insisted that the commission proceed to a determination of the matters at issue upon their merits.

The provision of section 1797-9, subsection 2, relating to union passenger depots, indicates that it was the legislative intent where two or more railroads serve a community to require a union passenger depot for the convenience of the public. Unless the physical conditions were such as to make it impracticable, or it could be shown that public convenience and necessity did not reasonably require such joint facilities. The statute in question is quoted below:

Law is Quoted

"In every city, village or town in which two or more railroads enter and maintain passenger depots, it shall be the duty of such railroads to construct, maintain and use an adequate union passenger depot, whenever practicable and required by public convenience and necessity. If, after investigation, the commission shall determine that it is practicable and that public convenience and necessity require the construction, maintenance and use of a union passenger depot by two or more railroads, in any city, village or town, in which such railroads enter and maintain passenger depots, the commission may, after notice and hearing as provided in section 1797-12, order such railroads to construct, maintain and use an adequate union passenger depot, and shall also in such order fix the location of such depot. If the railroads shall be unable to agree upon an apportionment of the original cost of such union passenger depot, and the cost and expense of maintaining the same, within twenty days after the service of such order, the commission may, after a like hearing, issue a supplemental order declaring the apportionment of such original cost and the cost and expense of maintaining such depot."

Roads to Pick Site

The commission recognizes that the choice of a specific site is a matter of vital concern to all of the railroads involved and that it may affect materially their plans for the future development of their respective properties. It is believed, therefore, that the best results can be obtained by permitting the railroad companies to propose for the consideration of this commission what in their judgment is the most practicable site for a union passenger station. With this situation in mind the order hereinafter made will not designate any specific site, jurisdiction being retained to determine such specific site as prescribed by the statute after definite proposals have been made by the railroads, and such proposals have been discussed with the petitioner.

The commission has given long and careful consideration to the record in this case, has examined the various sites proposed, and is of the opinion that it is practicable, and that public convenience and necessity require, the construction, maintenance and use of a union passenger depot in the city of La Crosse by the respondent railroads.

The Order

It is therefore ordered that the respondent, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad Company, The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company, The Green Bay & Western Railroad and the La Crosse & Southeastern Railway Co., shall construct, maintain and use a union passenger depot in the city of La Crosse. Ninety days from the date of this order is considered sufficient time within which the railroads may formulate and submit plans showing the location and character of the facilities proposed for such union passenger depot.

Jurisdiction is retained to determine the specific site and character of the facilities to be provided and such other pertinent matters not determined in this order.

Dated at Madison, Wis., this 28th day of July, 1922.

THE BREEZY PRESS AGENT GLOATS ON DEFEAT OF TRANES

BY JIM NOVAK

In a spectacular game of indoor football at the West avenue playgrounds Thursday evening, the Northern Breezes triumphed the Speedy Tranes, 9 to 0. The Tranes should change their name to Trane Tortoises for they are so slow that seventeen of them whiffed the air and only one man reached third base.

Ruch Trane, hurling for the Tortoises, was not in good form for he was eluded all over the lot. Since the winners eluded one for a home run.

The Northern Breezes have now won 2 out of 3 games played against the Trane Tortoises, which proves that the Tortoises are not to be classed with the Northern Breezes.

Batteries: Tranes Tortoises—R. Trane and A. Kauffuss; Northern Breezes—F. Kauffuss and L. Gausch.

APPROVE CLOSED SEASON ON FUR-BEARING ANIMALS

APPLETON, Wis.—Sportsmen of Outagamie county, following a hearing before the Wisconsin conservation commission here Wednesday night, agreed to accept a closed season for trapping muskrats, coon, otter and beaver in this county until the commission finds that the number of animals has increased sufficiently to warrant lifting of the ban. Trappers here are agreed that the number of fur-bearing animals will be materially increased if trapping is prohibited for a year.

CYCLIST SERIOUSLY HURT WHEN STRUCK BY AN AUTOMOBILE

F. W. Howard, Sustains Fractured Leg, Broken Ribs and May be Internally Injured

F. W. Howard, 1230 Jackson street, was seriously injured when struck by the automobile of L. E. Dutcher, while riding his bicycle home during the noon rush hour at Fifth and Cass streets Friday noon. Howard was immediately taken to the Grandview hospital by Mr. Dutcher and was said to have sustained a fracture of his right leg, below the knee, and several broken ribs. Physicians also stated that the patient may also be internally injured.

Howard, who operates a bicycle shop at his residence, was returning home from down town, riding south on Fifth street and turning to the east on Cass. Dutcher, driving an Essex automobile, was headed north on Fifth street and crashed into Howard at the intersection of the streets, police reported.

In reporting the accident to Central police station shortly afterwards, Howard stated that he turned to watch any traffic that might approach from the east on Cass street. In the meantime, he said, Howard had cut in ahead of him, and was within too close range to stop his machine in time to avoid the accident.

STRIKE-BREAKERS FLEE BEFORE MOB

Strike Sympathizers in Attack on Kenosha Round House; Women and Girls Take Part

JANESVILLE, Wis.—Strikers by rumors that negro strike-breakers had been imported by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road to take the place of the shopmen who are out here, a mob of several hundred gathered after a hard concert Thursday night and surrounded the round house where ten strike-breakers were working. Some stones were thrown by women and girls who were most noisy. Rydberg was hurled at the men and after the doors of the round house had been pushed open seven of the ten strike-breakers fled into the open. Five ran to the police station and two struck the trail out the Mineral Point division and nothing has been heard of them since. The five men reached the police station ahead of the running mob and were given protection there. No one was hurt, and early stories of beatings and rough work were not verified. A deputy who was said to have been hurt in the mob it was later learned had received his injuries from falling out of his automobile. Five of the men returned to work Friday. Few strikers were at the scene and most of them were the pickers on regular duty. The crowd was made up of curiosity seekers and strike sympathizers in large part.

THREE HUNDRED MEN AND WOMEN ARRESTED IN FLINT DRY RAIDS

FLINT, Mich.—More than 300 men and women were slated for appearance in police court here Friday, the result of raids Thursday night on every place in the city suspected of violating the liquor laws.

The wholesale clean-up was ordered by Mayor McKelighen after detectives had made a preliminary survey of conditions here and turned over to officers supervising the raid a complete directory of suspected saloons, pool halls and resorts. The raids were conducted chiefly in the northern part of the city. The city jail was filled early and the later arrivals were taken directly to the court rooms, where they were assigned seats and guarded through the night for the opening of court Thursday morning.

PASTOR WHO MARRIED COUPLE IN BATHING SUITS IS UNFROCKED

Rev. Thomas J. Irwin, of Lawton, Okla., Convicted at Secret Trial

LAWTON, Okla.—By The Associated Press.—Convicted at a secret trial on the widely heralded "bathing suit" charge and allegations of perjury and high-handed disciplining of members of his flock, the Rev. Thomas J. Irwin, former pastor of the Lawton Presbyterian church was unfrocked as a minister of the Pres.byterian church in the U. S. A. early Friday by the judicial commission of the El Reno Presbyterian church.

Mr. Irwin was found guilty of conduct unbecoming a minister in performing a marriage ceremony last summer at Medicine Park, a resort town here in which the principals, including the minister, wore bathing suits. It was alleged the wedding was conducted in a spirit of levity, bringing disrepute upon the church.

He was convicted of having sworn to a false affidavit to obtain a district court injunction restraining interference with his conduct of the affairs of the Lawton Church.

The third count on which his superiors voted guilty was that he disciplined members of his congregation without due process as provided by church regulations.

PINCH ON COAL FAMINE SOON FELT IN WISCONSIN

with the coal strike in Kentucky, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. Three coal carrying railroads, the Norfolk and Western, Chesapeake and Ohio and Louisville and Nashville, have declared embargoes on their lines against acceptance of any freight except food stuffs, live stock and fuel. The actions were taken under the interstate commerce commission declaration of an emergency which authorized roads embarrassed by the shopmen's strike to show preference and establish priority in transportation.

Takes Exception to Harding Note

LANSING, Mich.—A letter from President Harding declaring in effect that the federal government is powerless to force acceptance of the action of the United Mine Workers of America towards independent local agreements, at present nothing can be done except enable men willing to work in safety, and that the big issue in the coal strike dispute is national declaration, "unhesitatingly assumed by the mine workers," which must be taken care of by legislation. Friday drew sharp disagreement from Governor A. J. Crossbeck.

Replying to Governor Crossbeck's original proposal that the state take over and operate the mines, the president said:

"I don't know whether you have the persuasive power to effect a voluntary agreement in Michigan, but I think it fair to assume you would not enforce such an arrangement. For the present in the absence of law to guarantee service in the public welfare, we can only take steps necessary to enable men willing to work to do so in perfect safety. I do not think this means an armed guard at the mouth of every mine. It does need the assurance that state authority and federal authorities, when needed means to protect every man in the pursuit of lawful employment."

"It is a matter of record," the president wrote, "that coal operators and mine workers in many districts have been quite ready to come to an understanding, but the policy of the national organization is hostile to any district or state arrangement."

This apparently is one of the issues involved and is one which must be definitely settled. I do not know of any way of settling it under the best authorities which are now possessed by either state or federal government."

Legislation Needed

"Manifestly, legislation must be provided and I mean to submit the whole problem to congress at the earliest consistent time possible after the house assemblies."

"If the coal producers of the United States were so organized that a national body were to determine the policy of every member and permit no sales of coal except on dictation of terms by the national officials, every state legislature and congress itself would instantly put to an end such a practice. The mine workers unhesitatingly assumed national dictation. It is the big issue involved in the present dispute. Frankly I think it must be dealt with if we are to have any security and any assurance of a supply of fuel."

Replies to President

The governor's reply in the form of a letter, said in part:

"There being no dispute over wages or working conditions it seems a pity that the public must be made to suffer without any justification whatever."

"You will pardon me for taking the position that the national government has the power and authority to protect our citizens from the embarrassing situation that faces us. I do not see how we can concede that such power does not exist. I am writing frankly because the people are becoming impatient of further delay in the adoption of measures that will spell an early end of the matter."

SIMPLE LIVING AND HARD WORK MARK DAYS OF THE POPE

Pius Works Fifteen Hours a Day, Sleeps Seven and Devotes Two to Play

PRELATE TAKES PERSONAL CHARGE OF CHURCH AFFAIRS

Energy of His Holiness Surprises Members of His Household

ROME.—The daily life of Pope Pius XI at the Vatican is marked by simplicity, incessant work and regular exercise. He labors from 15 to 20 hours a day; sleeps from six to seven, and plays two hours. His meals are taken while he examines his mail or gives directions to his secretaries. His play consists of a vigorous military march seven or eight times around the Vatican gardens, making five or six miles and this he does daily.

His Holiness takes personal charge of the direction of the affairs of the church, assuming the routine to his secretaries. The diplomatic letters which attracted so much attention during the German conference were the personal work of the Holy Father.

He reads and writes like the rich of the world. He has a large collection of books, including a complete set of the Bible, and a large collection of the works of the fathers of the church. He is a great reader and a great writer. He has written many books and has been the author of many important documents.

"You know that when one is made pope, he is made a slave," he once said. "I will do nothing to preserve my freedom any more, for I will work until God says, 'Thou art free!'"

The pope's life is a life of simplicity and hard work. He is a great reader and a great writer. He has written many books and has been the author of many important documents. He is a great leader and a great teacher. He has been the source of many great ideas and has been the inspiration of many great men.

NOT ALL PRANKS ARE ON CIRCUS PROGRAM

AN IMPROVISED SKIT BEHIND THE SCENES OF THE KINGLING BROS. AND BARNUM & BAILEY CIRCUS.

Psychologists who have made a study of the circus and its people, state that continuous practice is not the only thing that keeps the performers youthful. Lightheartedness, the merry games in which they enter into between shows and the atmosphere of pure fun and play that at all times attends them, is, so the students say, responsible for their wonderful physical condition.

The accompanying picture is typical of the spirit of fun that always prevails in the "behind the scenes" portions of the big circus. An admirer has produced the party equestrienne with a box of balloons. The clown before he is allowed to skate in the sweetmeats the rider demands that he mark his very best back.

The followers of the "white tent" are indeed "children grown tall." They play little part in their actions. Jules Tarnour, a clown past his seventh year, is as active as the youngest of his fellows. He can turn a "flip-flop," walk the length of the hippodrome track on his hands or, without the slightest effort, place both heels at the back of his neck.

Yet Tarnour is not a contortionist. He is merely a circus performer who has retained the spirit and suppleness of youth. In the great, new Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Combined Shows are several specialists between forty and fifty years old.

What is undoubtedly the greatest gallery of acrobatic stars that have ever been assembled on one program is now touring America as a result of the combining of this country's two most famous circuses. Aside from the entertainment furnished by these hundreds of daring artists it is said to be worth much to watch them from a purely physical culture viewpoint. The mammoth super-circus with its many wonders is to exhibit here on Wednesday, August 2.

Iva Chavanne, Madison, an orphan, took poison in a deserted spot outside of this city Thursday. She was discovered by an automobile party and taken to a local hospital. The girl is still unconscious and expected to die.

In a letter to a member of the girls' club she said that "the only two things I wanted in this world—my baby and Ray—have been denied me."

STRIKE VOTE OF LAKE SEAMEN IN FAVOR OF STRIKE

Executive Committees of Three Unions Meet Next Week to Decide Action

CHICAGO, Ill.—By The Associated Press.—Further canvass of the strike vote taken by members of the marine firemen, oilers, waterfronters and coal passers' union and marine cooks, and stewards' union who work on freight boats operating on the Great Lakes was held today. K. B. Nolan, general secretary of the sailors' union, declared that the canvass would show the other two organizations favored a strike almost as thoroughly as the sailors, 94 per cent of whom voted to strike according to the secretary.

If attempts at a settlement should fail and a strike be called it would affect approximately 400 freight boats of the Lake Carriers' association. There are about 11,500 men in the three unions who work on these boats.

Executive committees of the three organizations were to meet at Detroit next week to decide on the course to be followed. The questions involved in the seamen's dispute are demands for an eight-hour day and a revision of wage scales. According to Mr. Nolan wages have been cut from $130 to $80 a month since May, 1921, and seamen now work 12 hours a day.

Public Debate

LAW AND ORDER

The large majority of the American people respect the enactments of congress and state legislatures, and the decision of courts. They do so because they believe that respect for them best insures what is commonly called "Law and Order." There is a small majority, however, that differentiates between legislative enactments and court decisions and the findings of commissions and the conclusions of bureaus, notwithstanding the authority of law and are in reality agencies of the government. And they do this though the findings of the one and the conclusions of the other lead to the maintenance of law and order in the broadest meaning of these words.

To illustrate: The decisions of the interstate commerce commission have the force of law, but suppose the roads should refuse to accept them as legally binding the roads, how would the railroads stand in relation to law and order? It is well to remember there are almost as many stockholders as there are railroad employees. Now the railway wage board's status is practically the same as that of the interstate commerce commission, and its conclusions are legally binding on railroad employees. Yet every decision of this board results in a strike vote, which is not, in attitude at least, consistent with law and order. Suppose, now, laws and decisions be observed by one part of the people and rejected by another part: how long will it be before there results disorder? Suppose the law and order people constituted a majority class and the others a minority class: where will responsibility for such disorder lie? Suppose the majority class not only make laws but also enforce them: that there be law and order; what will be the position of the minority class? These are questions worth considering by organized labor.

Editor, La Crosse Tribune and Leader-Press:
Please allow me a little space in your valuable paper regarding the purchase of the "Jog" for Copeland park. He is indeed a narrow-minded citizen who cannot see the benefit of acquiring such a piece of land for the entrance to this beautiful playground.

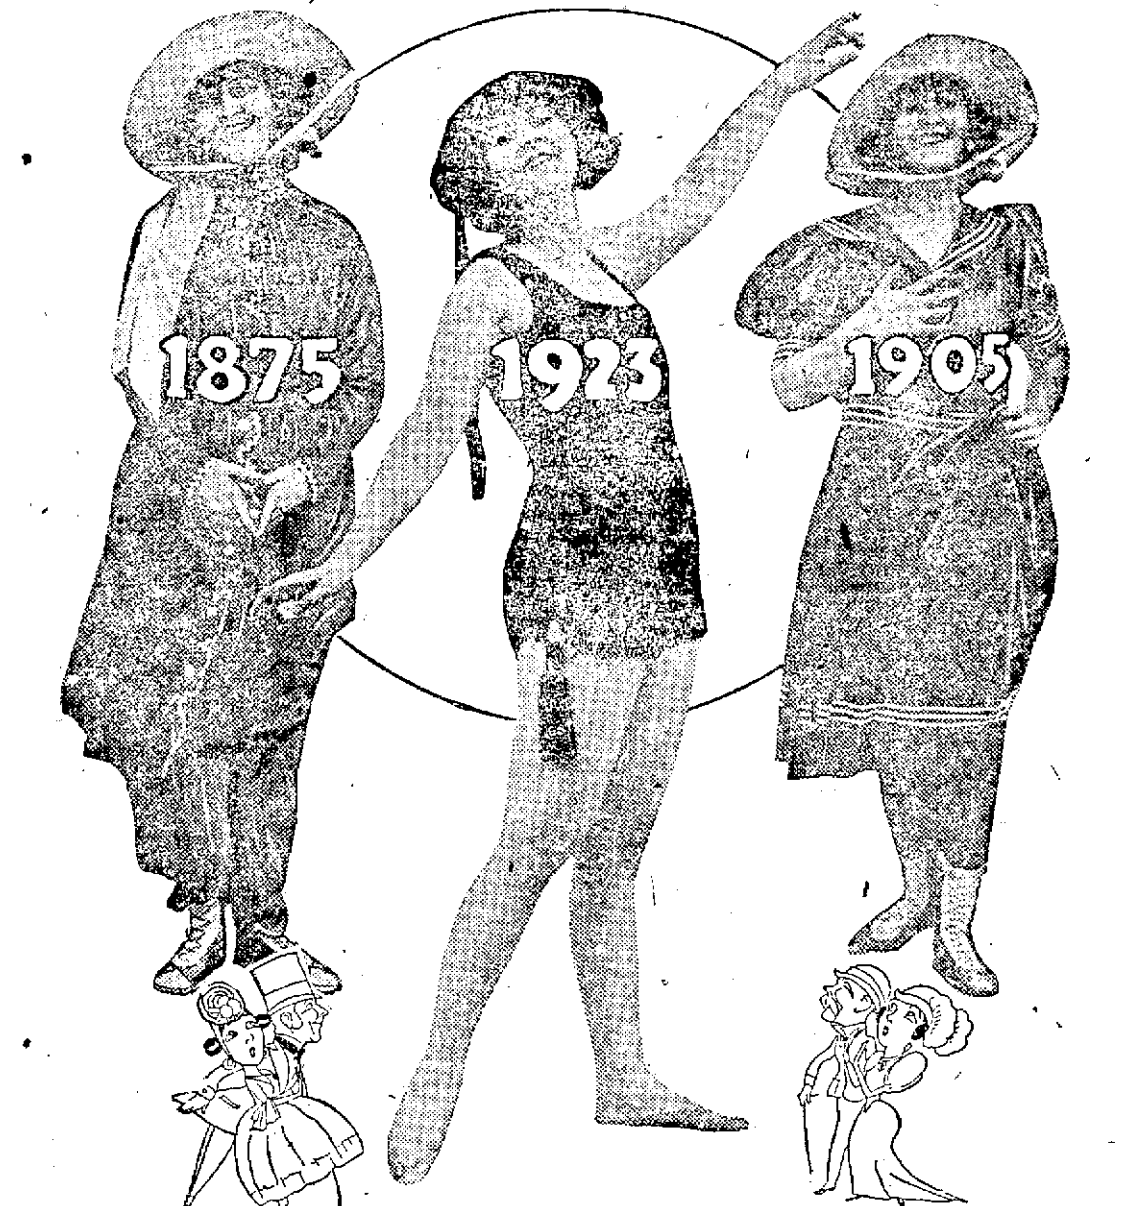

Any other wide-awake city would jump at the chance to buy it. Surely our city fathers are not so far behind the times, or so short-sighted as to let the opportunity slip. Let's all get together in a friendly way and see if this cannot be done to add to our city's beautification. What do you think about it? Are you a booster or a knocker when it comes to a showdown?

BEACH GARB, PAST AND FUTURE—PICK YOURS

LONG BEACH, N. Y.—Take another look at Miss 1923. Now go on with the story:

Having dragged your eyes from picture to type, consider the problem—if bathing togs for women underwent this metamorphosis in 50 years, what will the next 50 bring forth?

Hope Hampton, movie star, dug into Godey's Lady Book and other archaic archives for the architectural plans of beach costumes of the past.

And parading the sands of Long Beach she demonstrated why our grandfathers seldom had weak eyes.

Observe the quiet modesty of the bathing gown (gown is the word) of 1875: Full length coat buttoned round the neck, baggy ankle-length trousers, and hat and slippers.

By 1905 a bit of the neck was shown and elbows were emancipated. Trousers had gone (out of sight, at least), and a bit of the calf in modest stockings appeared.

By 1923 the goggles, please, and a dash of boric acid!

The cyclist is Miss 1923, with her skin-tight bit of seal, with ornamental thigh tassels, and a seal cap to match.

This is Miss Hampton's conception of next year's suit. She displayed it here.

They put these pictures in the movies, but the New York board of censorship decreed 1923 too strong for the eyes.

So wait for 1923!

NORMAL SCHOOLS TO TEACH MECHANICS OF THE MOVIE INDUSTRY

Michigan Acts on Theory that Motion Pictures are Coming Means of Education

LANSING, Mich.—Believing that motion pictures, within the next few years, will become almost as important a factor in education as text books, courses in motion picture mechanics will be inaugurated in the four Michigan normal colleges next fall. Thomas H. Johnson, state superintendent of public instruction, announced.

It will be necessary to train teachers to operate motion picture machines to carry out plans already laid by the state for introducing motion pictures into the schools, according to Mr. Johnson. Next fall the state department of education will establish a distributing station for educational films. The films are to be purchased outright by the state and sent to high schools. After the first year it is planned to encourage the cinema program by using only purchased films, but films depicting Michigan industries and institutions, manufactured under the supervision of the state department of education.

According to Superintendent Johnson, preliminary tests have proven the educational value of films. Students in manual training classes, he asserts, pick up the rudiments of bench or lathe work many times faster if they are first shown the processes of the work they are to undertake in pictures. The same fact applies to natural history, botany, zoology, chemistry and physics, he states. Within a few years he expects that the motion picture phase of education will have been developed to a point where literature and history will be taught through the medium of well acted plays on the screen.

Mr. Johnson's idea of making motion pictures a vital factor in education already has been endorsed by the state administration. A fund has been granted him for the establishment of a distributing station for films next fall. He plans to ask the 1923 legislature for a budget to further develop the idea.

Head of Veterans Association Declares Body Will Fight to Have General Ousted

CINCINNATI, Ohio.—Declaring that Brig. Gen. Charles E. Hamilton Cook, Buffalo, N. Y., national commander of the disabled American veterans of the world war in a statement Thursday said that the organization which he heads comprising more than 90,000 disabled men "would leave no stone unturned" to force General Sawyer to resign from the position he holds. "Henceforth the disabled American veterans of the world war will fight to the finish to see that General Sawyer is ousted and that control of hospitals is vested in Col. Charles H. Forbes, chief of the U. S. Veterans Bureau."

JACKSON TO QUIT STATE RATE BOARD RUMOR IN MADISON

MADISON, Wis.—The rumor is persistent here that Carl D. Jackson, member of the state railroad commission, will resign early in September. According to the present report which comes from semi-official sources, Mr. Jackson has been tendered the position of chief counsel for the Samsell public utility interests in Wisconsin. The Samsell interests own the public utility property at Fond du Lac and Sheboygan; the street car system in Sheboygan and interurban system from Neenah to Fond du Lac. Ten days ago, when this rumor first became known Mr. Jackson said that he had no statement to make. Since that time he has left for the west and is now in Utah on his vacation. Other members of the railroad commission claim to know nothing about the proposition.

GERMAN LANGUAGE PUBLICATION IN CHICAGO REVIVED

Business Men of City Back of Venture to Restore Famous Illinois Staatszeitung

COLLAPSE DUE TO FINANCIAL TROUBLES AND TO WAR FEELING

Paper One of Oldest in U. S.; Backed Lincoln Nomination

CHICAGO, Ill. — The Illinois Staatszeitung, one of the oldest newspapers in America and ranked in its time as the leading German language American newspaper, once more came into being Sunday, July 28.

The announcement of the initial issue of the paper states that a number of this city's leading professional and business men are behind the venture to revive the publication.

The Illinois Staatszeitung passed into the hands of Otto Doederlein, former United States consul at Leipzig, Germany, during the second Cleveland administration at a recent receivers' sale.

The paper was founded in 1845 under the name of Volksfreund. In 1847 the present name was adopted and for 75 years its political and social influence was a factor in the shaping of local and national affairs.

Franz Hoffmann, preacher, banker, farmer, national economist and lieutenant governor of Illinois, was its first editor. Among the men of the Staatszeitung whose names are linked with the country's history, may be mentioned, Brentano, Voecker, Raster, Japp, Mannheim and the two Hassings.

Its editors were primarily responsible for the nomination and election of Abraham Lincoln and it was due to the demands, energy and devotion to the Union that Hermann Baster, in the most critical days of the war, at the request of Secretary Seward, succeeded in persuading Bismarck to float an American bond issue in Prussia. It is an historic fact, that the promoters of the Great Northern Pacific railroad out of gratitude named the new city on the upper Mississippi, Bismarck, in honor of the Prussian minister.

The strength of its leadership consisted in a faithful interpretation and application of the ideals of true Americanism, and notwithstanding the fact, that it had licked its desires to the victorious charter of the republican party, its chief concern has been the welfare of the people, and an uncompromising demand for honesty in politics and political offices.

Its decline began before the world war. And when to internal financial troubles were added those incident to the war-fever, it collapsed.

Hardly ever have readers and subscribers, however, been more loyal to their old family newspaper than those of the Staatszeitung; and it is due to the present demand that Mr. Doederlein has come to the rescue. He consolidated the Staatszeitung with the Bismarckzeitung, likewise a publication of venerable age and with the aid of a board of directors, consisting of a number of leading Chicago business and professional men, he expects to continue the publication.

VICTIMS OF GOSSIP The CRIME AS TOLD IN THE CHARGES—

LOS ANGELES.—Will the "unwritten law" for years the plea of jealous husbands who have killed, save from the gallows Mrs. Clara Phillips, victim of gossip?

This is the question on the lips of all Los Angeles as the 23-year-old wife and slayer awaits trial here for the killing of Mrs. Alberta Meadows, pretty young widow whom Mrs. Phillips accused of undue intimacy with her husband.

The husband, A. L. Phillips, an oil man, denies his wife's charges concerning Mrs. Meadows—but no witness denies that Mrs. Phillips believed them with all her heart, and that she hammered her victim to death believing her the violator of her home.

Unfounded Rumor
Evidence has failed to show convincing ground for Mrs. Phillips' suspicion, yet some where a hint, a bit of covert gossip, or a self-developed pang in an emotionally high keyed heart, started the insane jealousy which ended in death for one and the arrest of the other.

"A victim of gossip," say all who know Mrs. Meadows. "She was innocent—it was the lying tongue of scandal the poisonous filth of slanderous minds that brought her to her death."

"A victim of gossip," say all who know Mrs. Phillips. And her husband echoes it. "It was the scandal-mongers, the lying tale-bearers and insinulators that poisoned her mind against Mrs. Meadows," they say.

Abnormal Jealousy
Jealousy—a jealousy which the mere death of her supposed rival could not appease, a jealousy which demanded the feel of tortured flesh beneath repeated blows; which demanded disfigurement. For the wife did not purchase a revolver, but a hammer, according to the woman police say was an eye-witness, Mrs. Peggy Caffee.

This is the story of Mrs. Caffee as officials say she told it to them: "Mrs. Phillips and I went shopping Wednesday (July 12). At the first store to which we went, Mrs. Phillips purchased a hammer. "Later we met Mrs. Meadows, evidently by appointment. Mrs. Phillips asked Mrs. Meadows to drive us in her car to her sister's house. Mrs. Phillips directed the way, and we drove to a lonely road. Then—

"Stop, damn you! I want to talk to you," Mrs. Phillips commanded. "Mrs. Meadows left the car and Mrs. Phillips followed.

Accuses Mrs. Meadows
"Mrs. Phillips accused Mrs. Meadows of intimacy with Mr. Phillips. There was an argument, and Mrs. Phillips struck with the hammer, the blow glancing off the other woman's shoulder. Mrs. Meadows ran, but Mrs. Phillips overtook her and brought her back, raining blow after blow upon her victim's head and face as she dragged her by the hair."

Mrs. Caffee, almost overcome by the sight, staggered down the road, half-fainting, she told her questioners. Soon Mrs. Phillips overtook her in the car and made her enter. They drove home.

"She threatened me with death if I ever said a word about the affair," Mrs. Caffee said with a frightened look in her eyes.

Husband's Story
Here Mrs. Phillips' husband picks up the story, as the police have it: "She came home to me and thought she had done something to be proud of," he says. "Your pretty sweetheart is not so pretty now," she told me. "She wanted to give herself up. She thought the authorities would believe she was justified."

But the husband knew better and

Wouldn't Be All at Sea

SCHOOL FOR MOVIE ACTORS STARTED BY PRODUCING COMPANY

Only Members of Company Eligible for Admission to Training School in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—The Famous Players-Lasky corporation has established a motion picture school for its actors and actresses here and has stipulated that any "pupil" who fails to maintain seventy-five per cent standing in classes, attendance, and general deportment is liable to dismissal from the company.

Every member of the Paramount company, which is owned by the corporation, is eligible for admission to the school, "unlike the student body of most schools," reads a pamphlet outlining the work. "The students in this company are persons who already have established reputations in their life work of acting for the screen. Therefore, the purpose of the school is not to instruct in the fundamentals of screen art, except as such instruction may correct minor faults, but to broaden the working knowledge of the members of the company to the end that they may increase their versatility and have a wider outlook on their art."

Two pages of the pamphlet are devoted to rules and regulations for members. Among the regulations are:

"Avoid alcoholic stimulants and late hours. "Although the stock in trade of the members is their ability to portray emotions, the place for such portrayal is on the screen and not in the studio. Temperament is a valuable asset, but temperament out of control is a nuisance to yourself and everybody about you. "Be careful of the choice of your associates outside the studio. "Members are expected to avoid places, people, circumstances and conduct which might in any way bring themselves and the motion picture profession into disrepute. Any member failing strictly to observe this rule is liable to instant dismissal from the company."

TRADING STAMPS OF TEA COMPANIES NOT LEGAL IS OPINION

Deputy Attorney General Advises Dairy and Food Commissioner on Law

MADISON, Wis.—The use of trading stamps by a tea company which gives credit with each purchase is in violation of the state law, R. W. Hoyt, deputy attorney general ruled today. He advises J. Q. Hancy, dairy and food commissioner, that the law prohibits the giving of any coupon in connection with sale of merchandise which entitled the purchaser to receive in exchange for it any goods, wares or thing of value.

The attorney general ruled, however, that another company which gave profit sharing credit with the purchase was not violating the law, nor was a milk firm buying milk and cream from farmers giving trading stamps in return. The buyer and not the seller in that instance was giving the stamps, a transaction not in violation of the law, he held.

MORGAN RETURNS TO OFFICE AFTER CAMPAIGN DRIVE

Candidate for Governor Will Spend Next Five Days at Office Work

MADISON, Wis.—Attorney General William J. Morgan, independent progressive republican candidate for governor, returns to his office in the capitol Saturday, where he will spend the next five days attending to work of his office.

He closed his fourth week of campaigning with a day at Camp Dodge, Wis. Friday, where he visited the ten thousand Wisconsin guardsmen in camp.

In the four weeks that Morgan has been out he has covered nearly 50 counties and made 150 speeches. He renews his campaign at Monroe, Wednesday night. Thursday he will speak in Brookstown, South Waubaesa, Shullsburg, Cuba City and Potosi, Wis. Friday will be given over to Grant county.

Saturday he will speak in Waupesa, Viola, Westby, Viroqua and Potosi du Chien. Mr. Morgan's campaign will include speeches in every one of the 71 counties in the state. With the greater part of the state already covered, the candidate will devote his time from now on to the large industrial centers and larger points.

"In 1920 I was overjoyed at the crowds I got. But this year my audiences for size and enthusiasm have those of the 1920 campaign topped," the attorney general said. "I have met thousands of men and women and there has been impressed upon me the profundity of the deep convictions of right that motivate the people. They are deep thinking, honest and upright men and women. They have a deep sense of justice and intelligence in public service. They want to clean house and they are going to do it. "I am happy that I am in their fight to clean house."

WHITE SOX ON BENDER DEFEAT BOSTON, 4-3

Macks Show Way to Indians 11 to 2

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Schang's home run in the seventh inning gave the Yankees a 6 to 5 victory over the Browns here Thursday. The defeat of the Browns' league lead to half a game. The Browns tied the score in the eighth when they hit a home run in the eighth with four men on base. New York hit a homer in the ninth.

Joe Garber, pitcher of the Browns, was ordered out of the game in the tenth by umpire Owens, after he had been charged with a balk. The ball was thrown out to umpire Connelley, who refused to let anybody see the ball.

BENNY LEONARD BEATS LEW TENDLER IN 12 HOT ROUNDS AT BOYLE'S THIRTY ACRES

NEW YORK.—By the Associated Press.—Benny Leonard still holds the world's lightweight boxing championship but he realizes that Lew Tandler, Philadelphia left hander, is neither a "second rate" nor a "dub." Champion since 1917, when he bowled over English Freddie Welsh, Leonard walked out of the great pine bowl on Boyle's thirty acres Thursday night with the crown perched far back on his head. Tandler put it there. Had the challenger the stamina to hold the lead he gained in the early rounds he would have knocked it off. Leonard won by the palest of shades.

No Official Decision. The bout went the full 12 rounds and under the law of New Jersey, there was no official decision. Leonard had predicted that he would finish Tandler within seven rounds. In that period Leonard had brushed aside blood that trickled from his brow, turned his head to one side, spat out a tooth and grunted dissatisfaction.

The champion had the reserve strength to take the lead when Tandler faltered after boxing him all over the ring for four rounds. Leonard was visibly dazed until this juncture. After the fourth Benny swept the cobwebs from his head with both hands.

The rally of the titleholder in the fifth, sixth and seventh rounds nettled and rattled the Philadelphia. But in the eighth Lefty Lew came back for a spell. Tandler shot a left, then another and then another all to the champion's jaw. Leonard's knees sagged, he clutched Tandler's shoulders, resting there.

Tandler was annoyed in the tenth by the champion's peeing two hands. So Leonard let up, then fainted. Tandler was fooled. He stepped back, away, turning from his antagonist. Leonard then sent straight rights and lefts to head and body and Tandler went to the ropes. Tandler fought back out and the going stopped that.

They both missed often in the last two rounds but Leonard's sharp shooting right was the more accurate. Bitter Struggle. It was a bitter struggle from the opening bell and Leonard had all he could do to outpoint the aggressive fighter from Philadelphia. As a matter of fact, in the eighth round Tandler had Leonard in pretty bad shape and for a short while it appeared that the Quaker would win right there.

Leonard was the more clever and hit the cleaner blows, but Tandler never stopped tearing in, always pummeling Leonard in close with savage chops to the wind. At long range Leonard showed to advantage and it was the punch he gathered at this style of milling that probably entitled him to the verdict, although he did not win by a very wide margin.

Taunts Title Holder. There were times during the fight when Tandler taunted and kidded the champion to a frenzy, causing the latter to miss repeatedly in his anxiety to take the southpaw.

In the first round Tandler pitched the fight into Leonard and cut the champion's right eye with a left hand swing. The eye bled for the remainder of the bout and served to handicap Leonard to some extent. In the third round Leonard took up the going and plastered Tandler with rights to the jaw, while Tandler contented himself with punching away at Benny's ribs while mixing it in close. During that round Tandler was charged by the referee with hitting low and he apologized, but he never let up kidding the New Yorker.

BASEBALL'S BIGGEST BONES STEALING OCCUPIED BASE IN WORLD SERIES GAME

When a player steals a base with somebody occupying that particular bag, he is said to have pulled a "John Anderson."

The reason, of course, is that John Anderson is officially credited with being the first player to steal a base with the bag occupied.

Baseball historians have it that Anderson pulled such a "bone," for the first time, back on June 14, 1896, while playing for Washington, against Baltimore in the National league.

Anderson's stunt was pulled 25 years ago, but ball players have been doing the same thing ever since in the majors and minors. Hardly a year passes in the majors but what someone pulls a "John Anderson."

Back in the 1917 world series between Chicago and New York, Pitcher "Red" Faber pulled the trick. It was the first time anyone ever worked a "John Anderson" in the big series.

Faber, who rarely tries to steal a base, for some reason elected to steal third. Noticing the pitcher winding up he got a good lead and slid safely into third. Unfortunately, another Chicago player was occupying the base, and Red, much to his surprise and embarrassment was tagged out.

Since Faber pitched and won three games against the Giants in that series, his "bone" on the bases didn't get much publicity. However, it stands out as the only time a player ever elected to steal a base in a world series with someone occupying the base.

An unusual minor league incident of a like nature was one successfully staged. McKee of the San Francisco club stole third with the bases filled and actually got away with it.

How come? Well, it so happened that the umpire ruled a balk on the pitcher, which entitled all baserunners to advance. It saved McKee from heading the list of ivory hunters.

ASSEMBLY SEATS TO BE HARD EARNED IN THE NEXT ELECTION

Contests Under Way in Nearly Every District Between La Follette and Antis

ALL FORCES HAVE CANDIDATES IN REPUBLICAN PRIMARIES

Necessary for La Follette Forces to Win 13 Seats for Control

MADISON, Wis.—By The Associated Press.—Seats in the 1923 Wisconsin legislature are to be hard-earned and to carry with them an importance that will affect the accomplishment of the next state administration. Contests are under way in practically every senatorial and assembly district with the division between La Follette supporters and anti-La Follette candidates and between so-called wets and drys.

Seats in the assembly are to be elected from the odd numbered districts, and senators from each of the 100 districts. Twelve of the 16 hold-over members of the upper house who are returned to the legislature with-out election this term, are anti-La Follette men and 11 are wets.

If the La Follette forces are to gain control of the senate it will be necessary for them to win 13 of the 41 contests for seats. All assemblymen are re-elected so that control here will depend upon the individual contests throughout the state. Of the 1921 legislature, 51 members were elected as drys and 49 as wets or uncertain.

Both Forces Out

Both the La Follette and the anti-La Follette forces and the wets and the drys have their candidates in the Republican primaries for legislature seats. Without control of both houses of the legislature neither faction can carry through any program of legislation that it may advocate during the campaign.

While the list of individual candidates in each of the senate and assembly districts is not available, both sides in the contest claim that they have representatives entered in the races in each district.

The contest for seats in the upper house is outlined largely by nomination papers filed with the secretary of state. In the first senatorial district John R. Cashman, of Denmark, a La Follette supporter is opposing Senator Herbert L. Peterson of Sturgeon Bay for re-election. Senator Peterson voted with the administration forces during the last session of the legislature on practically all questions. He is a dry.

The Rock county district Republican nomination will go by default to Thomas Nolan, former state senator who has no opposition. Nolan, classes as a wet and an anti-La Follette man. A. E. Garay, the La Follette candidate failed to file his nomination papers in time to have his name placed on the ballot.

Nye Opposed

Senator R. J. Nye, Superior, chairman of the finance committee of the legislature, and anti-La Follette candidate is opposed for re-election in the eleventh district by O. G. Kinney of Superior. Senator Nye is one of the veteran members of the legislature and is classed with the drys.

THIRTEENTH CENTURY CLOTHING BROUGHT TO LIGHT IN GREENLAND

Men's Costumes Over 600 Years Old Uncovered by Danish Scientist

COPENHAGEN.—Men's costumes of the 13th and 14th centuries have been found in Greenland. They are in an excellent state of preservation, and resemble the clothes worn by Dante in the published pictures of the Italian poet. They are not yet open to public view; but may be exhibited at some future date.

These interesting finds were made by Dr. Noerlund, a Danish scientist, while excavating in ancient burial grounds in the southwestern part of Greenland. They are the only existing specimens in the world of garments worn by men in the 13th and 14th centuries. Being deposited in the frozen earth for about 600 years has preserved them from destruction by moth and age. The garments are now in Copenhagen and deposited in the Danish collection in the museum housed in the Prinsen's Palace.

Dr. Noerlund has found also several old wooden crosses in the frozen earth. They are covered with inscriptions in the Gothic, rune script, and are considered by scientists to be of great historic value.

RAILROADS SCORED BY BECK SPEAKING AT THURSDAY MEET

Congressman Raps Reserve Bank System in Talk; Favors Soldier Bonus

LOGANVILLE.—Don J. D. Beck, member of Congress spoke here today upon the political issues facing the people of Wisconsin. He discussed the conditions of the farmers and business institutions in rural communities, the influence of Wall Street on the government and profits made by big business interests during the war and among other things said:

"The aversion of greed has no conscience and it knows no limit. No sooner had the armistice been signed than the security holders of Wall Street began clamoring for the railroads to be turned back to their original owners, and they laid down the conditions upon which they should be turned back. They were to be turned back on March 1st, 1920, at a time when the Government was running them at a profit of $50,000,000 per month in spite of the fact that we were just beginning to emerge from a great war. They were to be turned back with an increase in the rates from 35 percent to 40 percent. You know that during the war the U. S. Treasurer squeezed all the Liberty Bonds possible out of the farmers, the wage earners, the soldiers and other common people. They were induced to take these bonds on the theory that the banks would carry them permitting the subscribers to pay for them in small monthly payments. Immediately after the war closed the Federal Reserve Board notified its member banks to force payment at once on all bonds so purchased, with the result that thousands of laboring men, farmers, soldiers, school teachers and others of small means, could not complete their payments all at once, lost all they had paid, and Wall Street gobbled them for deferred payments.

"And what about the wage earners? There are over 5,000,000 wage earners in this country out of employment and have been out of employment for over a year, and nearly half of them are soldiers. Soldiers that were promised anything when they returned from the war. But what do they get? Work? No, Bonus? No, They get nothing.

"And the railroads. Soon after they got an increase of 35 percent to 40 percent in rates, they cut the wages of the men 12 percent. Now they profess to have reduced freight rates 14 percent and for every 14 cents reduction in rates they take 15 cents out of their employees who, for the first time in the history of railroading are getting a fairly decent wage. But mind you they have reduced no $125,000 salaries."

PREPARATIONS MADE FOR CERTIFICATION OF SOME COUNTIES

MADISON, Wis.—Preparations are being made at the office of secretary of state today for certification of the various counties of the state of the names will go on the primary election this fall. It will still be several days before the complete compilation is completed, and ready to be mailed to the county clerks of the various counties. There are four party ballots for submission to the voters in the primaries. Constitutional questions will not be submitted to the voter until the November election.

GLORIA SWANSON MAKES HIT IN "UNDER THE LASH"

Gloria Swanson created a profound impression by her portrayal of the abused wife of a South African farmer in her new Paramount picture, "Under the Lash," which was shown at the theatre before a delighted audience last night. The story is quite dramatic and the action is rapid. The production as a whole is of the finest grade. Mahlon Hamilton renders adequate support as does also Russell Simpson, Lillian Leighton, Richard Simpson, Thelma Jasper and Clarence Ford.

REMARKABLE CAST IN GASNER'S NEW FILM

An all-star cast, including some of the best known names in film, presents L. J. Gasner's production of "Silent Years," an R.C. picture based on the novel "Mansel's Jo" by Harriet T. Comstock and scheduled for screening at the Casino Theatre today.

The secret of the remarkable cast has been explained by Mr. Gasner who took particular pains to assemble one of the most exceptional groups of life in the St. Lawrence river region.

Here they are: Rose Dione, Tully Marshall, George M. Daniel, George Selman, Will Hutton, Jack Livingston, Ruth King, Kate Toncray, Lillian Rambeau, Jean O'Rourke, Pauline Starke and Ruth Ashby.

"This is a really wonderful cast," said Mr. Gasner, "quite the most wonderful I have ever directed."

HARRY MYERS REAL HIT IN "BOY CRAZY"

Harry Myers, popular leading man, who scored such a tremendous triumph in a "Connecticut Yankee," appears opposite Doris May in "Boy Crazy," her latest production at the Lincoln Steadman, Thelma Jasper and Clarence Ford.

The career of Harry Myers has extended over a long period of both stage and screen experience, although he is still in his early thirties, or he immediately found a niche for himself and in that short time he has appeared in many of the leading productions, including "The Notorious Mrs. Sands," with Jessie Burrisale, "Peaceful Valley," "R. S. V. P." and "Forty Five Minutes from Broadway," with Charles Ray; "A Connecticut Yankee," "Don't Trust Your Husband," "The March Hare," with Bobo Daniels, "Handle With Care," "Nobody's Fool" and "Turn to the Right."

STRAND TODAY
James Oliver Curwood, who has

"Jan of the Big Snows," at the Strand tonight.

provided such well known stories for screen presentation as "The River's End," "Back to God's Country," "Flower of the North," etc., is the author of a splendid production, "Jan of the Big Snows," which will be the feature attraction at the Strand Theater today.

In "Jan of the Big Snows" Mr. Curwood has again chosen the Hudson Bay country as his locale and his "true to life" characters were selected after the usual Curwood research work far north from civilization's rim.

All the action takes place at an isolated trading post where Fred Cummings returns with his bride. The entire population consists of seven men including Jan, who has never had a love affair in his entire life till he meets Cummings' wife. The "honor of the big snows" demands protection for the weak—a man must suffer, starve or die before he will take what belongs to another man.

OLD MASTERS STUDIED IN GREAT FILM PLAY

Abel Gance, who is a dramatist as well as a poet, psychologist and motion picture director and producer, believes that nothing is even half done unless it is done in the very best manner possible in all essentials. Hence in making his sensational film production, "I Accuse," has been obtained by the Majestic for the feature beginning today. Mr. Gance, in addition to making use of all the elements of dramatic artistry with which he was familiar went in addition to the old masters of painting for inspiration to give him aid in the lighting and grouping of these splendidly realistic scenes through which are pictured all the human emotions. As a result of Mrs. Gance's study one sees Botticelli in an exquisite group of dancing girls, with grass and figures flecked with flowers and light. One sees also the grim realists with the somberness of their canvases marked brilliantly by revealing flashes of light.

Eagle on His Native Heath
High above the ground the eagle floats on his red-brown wings, while the white-barred feathers of his tail are spread out fanwise as a rudder to steer his course. His piercing eye is searching the heather far below.

Suddenly he swoops. Next moment he is rising again swiftly and strongly with a mountain hare held fast in his talons. The great wings beat the air now with long, powerful strokes, carrying him rapidly towards the hungry family that is waiting for him in the eyrie.—Exchange.

Making the Text Fit the Case

After the morning service the new minister found several buttons among the coins in the collection plates, and at the opening of the evening service he said: "I wish to remind you that there will be a collection at the close of the service. The text I have chosen for this evening's sermon may be found in the thirteenth verse of the second chapter of Joel: 'Read your heart, and not your garments.'—Ladies' Home Journal."

The Trees' Yield

Gums are the glutinous matters which exude from certain trees. They are all more or less soluble in water. Resins are obtained in the same manner as gums, but differ from gums in being insoluble in water, and therefore more suitable for varnishes.

Now Women Invade Diplomats' Field

The diplomatic world has been comparatively free from the invasion of women up to this time, but now the masculine monopoly is threatened.

Lucille Atcherson, 26, Columbus, O., has applied for appointment as aide at the American embassy in Paris.

Since Miss Atcherson's return from France, where she was general secretary of the American committee for Devastated France, she has taken examinations for appointment to a position "en carriere," which term distinguishes those in line for promotion to ministers and ambassadors.

O. K. ADOPTION OF PORTLAND GIRL BY FRENCH COUNTESS

Court Approves Documents Making American Girl Member of Old Family

NEW YORK.—Documents permitting the adoption of Mrs. Pierre Tardieu, daughter of Mrs. R. Benque Barnet of Portland, Ore., by the comtesse Clarel De Tocqueville De Rampan De Chauquetot were approved Thursday by surrogate John P. Coburn.

Through the adoption the American girl becomes a legal member of the aristocratic French family and may use the title "Comtesse De Rampan and Comtesse De Chauquetot." The new countess may also share in the estate of the family which includes among other historic possessions a luxurious home in Paris and a chateau near Cherbourg.

Mme. De Tocqueville has been attached for some time to the girl she has adopted as her daughter.

"My own daughter who died," the countess said "would have been about Claudia's age had she lived."

The countess De Tocqueville is the widow of Vicomte De Tocqueville an officer of the Legion of Honor.

The Best Test of a Play

If I were a dramatist I would tell the plots of my plays to a child under nine years old. If his interest wavered, I would despair; if I could hold him wide-eyed, I should hope. Moller chose his cook for such a purpose—be sure she had the child-like mind. It is in the hour before or after bedtime that you will find our critic most receptive. You have in him then a first-night audience, and his "Go-on!—what happened then?"

LUCILLE ATCHERSON.

will be your best applause.—W. M. Letts in the Yale Review.

"Digest's" Poll of the Nation

Have You Voted Yet?

In this week's "Digest" (July 29th) there is a summary of 357,600 ballots in the poll of 10,000,000 men and women in every state of the Union which THE LITERARY DIGEST is conducting on the subjects of Prohibition and the Soldiers' Bonus. There is also a statement from Mr. Wheeler, General Counsel and Legislative Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League and communications from representatives of organizations in favor of a modification of the present liquor law.

Never before outside of a general election has such an extensive poll been conducted. In addition to the thousands of ballots being received daily, letters are pouring in from all sections. By a secret process these ballots are proof against forgery and the most careful precautions have been taken against fraud of any kind, so that when the final tabulations are given they will reflect accurately public sentiment upon these two burning issues. These ballots have been sent, by mail, to more than 10,000,000 men and women, representing practically every profession and industry in the country. In addition, the poll will be extended so as to include large industrial concerns—the result of a poll in the Edison plant is shown this week.

The balloting will be continued throughout the summer and reported weekly in "The Digest." Don't fail to get this week's number and study the returns.

If you have received one of these ballots be sure to mark and return it immediately so that your vote may be recorded.
